

SOCIETY

Maybe it's because of the uncertainty of the weather and perhaps it's more convenient, but at any rate the headgear worn by Honolulu's men in society at night is about as nondescript as one could imagine. Otherwise garbed in a la mode, their evening dress, waistcoats, collars, ties and footwear of the latest pattern, the headgear verges on the humorous. To obtain a view of outlandish hats and caps one has but to watch a procession of guests on their way to or returning from a social function. There is a handsome young fellow in faultless evening dress wearing a dinky little steamer cap with white and black stripes. Another handbox of fashion has a steamer cap of four or five seasons back with ear-flaps tied on top with black cord. An elderly man looks and feels comfortable in a yachting cap. A middle-aged married man wears a soft black felt hat somewhat battered from having been worn at many a hotly contested game on the golf links. Still another in the long procession wears a Panama turned up in front and down at the back of the neck, and another wears his just the reverse. Some Panamas are worn with the crown dented in a la Fedora style, others in the more recent dish-mode. Here and there may be seen a Derby, some with the latest curves in the brim and others dating back into last century. Then several motor caps are in evidence. At long intervals may be seen a top hat. In fact the latter seems to have only a part in the social curriculum on wedding and opera occasions. Then they are out in force. Of course, a little steamer cap or a black felt is easy to stuff into one's coat pocket on arrival at the place of entertainment, and therefore easily found when its owner is ready to take his departure. Then, of course, all this departure from the set methods of dress may be due, as has been said, to the uncertain state of the weather, but it's all decidedly humorous.

Commodore Charles R. Tutt of Denver, owner of the New York Yacht Club Ketch Anemone, second in the trans-Pacific race from San Pedro to Honolulu, will entertain at an elaborate dinner at the Moana Hotel on Monday evening. This dinner will be one of the most prominent in the series of yachting entertainments, and one which will make not only the first trans-Pacific yacht race to be long remembered, but the yacht Anemone especially. About thirty guests will attend the dinner. Following this a reception and a dance will be the form of entertainment for the remainder of the evening and for this about 400 invitations are to be issued.

Judge and Mrs. Sanford B. Dole entertained Mrs. Walter Maxwell, formerly of Honolulu and latterly of Queensland, while she was in town the other day. Mrs. Maxwell was en route from the Colonies to Massachusetts to join her talented husband.

The opening of the Honolulu Seaside Hotel last evening was one of the notable social events of the summer season. A moonlight night, a fashionable assemblage, music and merriment were conducive to an auspicious beginning for the new beach resort. The grounds between the pavilion and buildings and the ocean shore were illuminated with Oriental lanterns. The beautiful new pavilion was brilliant with multi-colored electric lights. Dotting the grounds were numerous small pavilions, formed beneath spreading branches of the hau tree, with small tables for refreshments.

The opening of the resort, which is under the management of Fred. C. Church, came early in the evening of Monday night. The luncheon was set for a special party, the tables being in the form of a circle, about the central pillar, which was wound with red carnation leis. About forty people, designated as the "400," were grouped at this table, where merriment and jollity were the order. Other smaller dinner parties were scattered here and there about the grill room. The buffet, finished in red, was early an attraction.

The patronesses for the occasion were Princess Kawanakoa, Mrs. R. C. Van Vleet, Mrs. B. F. Fuller, Mrs. Geo. W. Macfarlane, Mrs. F. Howard Humphris, Mrs. C. W. C. Deering, Mrs. Fred. W. Macfarlane, Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder, Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Mrs. C. B. High, most of whom were present.

Dancing in the new pavilion was a pleasure. Open to the sea, swept by cool valley breezes, brilliantly illuminated, and with a perfect floor and entrancing music, no place in Honolulu can equal the pavilion as a ball room.

It was a fashionable gathering, the invitation list including the leading society people of the city. The army and navy were well represented.

Above all, the guests had the boom of the surf in their ears through all the ear-haunting melodies, two-steps and waltzes, which were played by the quintet club.

Viscount and Viscountess d'Humieres of Paris gave a delightful dinner at the Hawaiian Hotel on Friday evening for a countryman of theirs. The party will go to the volcano on Monday and will leave for the Coast on the Nippon Maru.

Miss Elizabeth Lawlor, who arrived on the Ventura, and Mr. Edward Leonard were married yesterday morning at St. Andrew's cathedral and in the afternoon went to Haleiwa to spend their honeymoon. The couple became acquainted through mutual friends, the Schermerhorns, who resided here until a couple of years ago.

Mrs. George R. Carter has discontinued her formal days at home until October.

A supper dance was given by Miss Claire Williams at the home of her mother, Waikiki, on Wednesday evening in honor of the class of '06 of Oahu College. The decorations followed the colors of the college. Ernest Kaai furnished music for dancing.

Mrs. Alexander Scott was the guest of honor of Mrs. C. G. Ballentyne at a luncheon on Friday. Yellow predominated in the decorations and the hand-painted place cards were quite pretty. Following the luncheon the guests played bridge, Mrs. Hawes obtaining the first prize.

Dr. Yost, U. S. A., who took a dose of poison by mistake on Thursday evening at his apartments in the Young Hotel, is improving. He is convalescing at Miss Johnson's Sanitarium.

Mrs. H. V. Murray has been quite ill for the past week.

A jolly hayride party was given last evening by Miss Hopper.

Mrs. Harry Couzens expects to leave for Europe shortly.

It is now Captain Slattery, and he is back from the Coast with two bars to his shoulder straps.

Mr. Harry Wandschneider and Miss Streitel were married at Englewood on Wednesday evening. The bridesmaid was Miss Sylvia Bryant, and the best man Mr. Ed. Davis.

Miss Almee Gribble and Mr. James C. Bicknell, the County Auditor, were married on Thursday evening. On their return from the country they will reside in their new home, formerly the Beardslee home, in Kinau street.

Mrs. M. M. Scott and Miss Marion Scott have returned from Ahulimanu, where they were the guests of the Macfarlanes.

Governor and Mrs. Carter's reception on Thursday evening was a notable social event of the week. Despite showers during the early part of the evening a large number of those invited responded. The grounds were illuminated by red, white and blue electric lights. In the mansion, the balustrade in the reception hall was draped with a huge Hawaiian flag. The Governor and Mrs. Carter received in the main parlor. A splendid arrangement of American Beauty roses at the foot of the tall pier mirror, with clusters of roses on a shelf just opposite, formed an attractive decorative scheme. Mr. George Smithies received the guests at the entrance and escorted them to the parlor, introductions being made to the Governor and Mrs. Carter by Messrs. Gerrit Wilder and J. R. Galt. Judge Mahaula and a number of friends of Waihalua made their entry noticeable by singing Hawaiian songs. Mrs. Bruce Mackall of Waihalua also sang prettily. The refreshments and punch were delicious.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Ripley announce the engagement of their daughter, Lilla May, to Mr. James Lawrence Brever Robinson.

Miss Helene Irwin may not make her debut this year in California as planned, but may do so at Philadelphia under the management of her aunt, Mrs. Robinson.

Mr. C. Shiozawa, editor of the leading Japanese newspaper, entertained at dinner last evening for Dr. Rasser, a Russian gentleman now visiting in Honolulu. The menu was distinctly Japanese and there were music and wines which prolonged the dinner to a late hour. The visitor made some remarks concerning the late unpleasantness between Japan and Russia.

She is so very beautiful
That when she smiles or sighs
She is the very cynosure
And apple of all eyes.

The beauty of her music is
The music of her coin.

Miss Alice Gillet became the bride of Mr. A. Berg on Monday evening at St. Andrew's cathedral. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Mackintosh in the presence of a fashionable gathering, although the assemblage was limited to relatives, intimate friends and business associates of the groom. The bride entered the edifice upon the arm of Mr. A. A. Young, preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Bertha Young. At the chancel the groom awaited the bride, attended by Mr. J. W. Waldron, his best man. Following the ceremony and the signing of the register, the bridal party left the church to the strains of the wedding march and was driven to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Young, King street, where a reception was held. This, too, was attended only by relatives and intimate friends of the couple. After concluding their honeymoon on Tantalus, Mr. and Mrs. Berg will reside at the Young Hotel.

Mrs. Porter Boyd may spend the summer in Honolulu.

Miss Capitola Tuttle of Las Vegas, N. M., arrived on the Ventura to visit Mr. and Mrs. Edward Douglas of 1718 Nuuanu street.

Mrs. J. S. McGrew has returned from Hilo.

A tallyho party was given on Friday evening by Miss Renny Catton for about twenty of her young friends. The party was driven out to Waihalua and back.

Mrs. McCully-Higgins has returned from Maine and is domiciled at the Young.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice gave a very enjoyable dinner at Kalapaki, the occasion being the seventh anniversary of their wedding. The table was very daintily decorated with white daisies and maiden-fair ferns and the whole room was a

BARGAINS IN EVERYTHING

The People's Bargain Store is open for trade in the Progress Block, where A. Blom formerly had his dry goods establishment. The bargains there are genuine.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS.—There are many articles for the kitchen, to you at 'way-down prices—other storekeepers would you we were giving them away. Kitchen and dining room tables, fine cups and saucers go for a song while they last.

LADIES' WEAR.—Articles for ladies' wear are as plentiful as will find in any regular dry goods emporium, though we do make a specialty of them. We have them now and will come to sell them as long as we can buy at a price that enables us to offer them to our customers as bargains.

STATIONERY.—Stock in this line not yet complete, but enough convince you that we mean business and will have what the public demands—good quality at fair price. School supplies all be a specialty with us when the season opens.

CANDY AND SODA.—There is not a better assortment of candies in the city than is shown here and it will be renewed every day so there will be none of the day-before-yesterday goods offered as fresh. The soda water is fresh and sparkling and the ice cream is made of pure Jersey cream. Pure fruit syrups only will be served. A Chicago specialist who knows what to serve and when will look after the syrups.

On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. George Cooke entertained at dinner for the attendants at their wedding. Table decorations were in white and pink.

The cabin of the yacht Anemone is a "dream." Once inside a visitor can hardly believe that he is upon a yacht. The cabin is finished in panels of ada yesterday on the Mlowera.

Admiral and Mrs. H. W. Lyon bade farewell to Honolulu on Monday last, when they departed for San Francisco and Mare Island on the steamer Mongolia. A number of friends were at the dock to see them off.

Rear-Admiral Very, U. S. N., the new commandant for the Honolulu Naval Station, is expected to arrive here shortly.

Among the arrivals from Japan of the Mongolia were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gay of Kauai, Dr. Augur, and Mr. and Mrs. John Ena.
